My friends say I'm a down-to-earth person and good at expressing the feeling of thank you.

Yes No — I have no experience to staying abroad for a long time and I don't know if it's possible for me or not. For now, I want to live in Japan, but am thinking of living overseas. Because of that experience I understand other's pain much more.

What message would you like to send to your future spouse? I'd a relationship in which we can feel easy by being together and talking about anything. I hope we become a couple that respects each other, holds hands and loves each other even we get old
